

Reaching New Heights

Yes, those walls really are that tall! We created a 14 foot tall, privacy screen wall solution for a large data center outside of Chicago. This challenge, from the architect, was to create a strong, tall solution that hid a variety of equipment including some large generators. They wanted a wall system that could be integrated into their brick pillar design to create a clean, modern look that would be strong enough to withstand Chicago weather. Our design engineers collaborated with our client to evaluate all options to deliver a solution that is both attractive and achieved their structural needs. We are very proud of the finished product which was accomplished by incorporating CityScapes Structural Rib Metal Series along with some custom retaining posts. More importantly, the customer is delighted. We are eager to get started on phase II of this project and look forward to a long standing relationship with this client.

What challenge do you have with an upcoming project? We would love the opportunity to partner with you.

Metal Series: Panels are comprised of a durable steel exterior with a high performance polyurethane foam core. The wall sections fit together seamlessly with a concealed interlocking channel, providing a flush appearance. The Structural Rib design offers a dimensional look to create depth and interest and is available in a wide array of colors to coordinate with any project.
